

We have some exciting news for you! Austin Investor Interests has two announcements to make regarding the apartment information you currently receive.

 The first is that our Apartment Market Wall Maps are back by popular demand! This 3'x 5.5' wall map will be released next week. Those customers with a current, annual Apartment Data Online subscription will automatically receive one free map per subscription. Additional maps may be purchased for $300 per map. You may preview the map on our website by clicking the submarket map tab and selecting the link below the small map to view the map by key code. An email has been sent to the primary user on the Apartment Data Online Subscription to verify the delivery address.

 The second announcement is the launch of our long awaited new website! Release to beta users is expected over this summer. Now you will not only have access to the most comprehensive data available, but you will experience it with state of the art technology. New features include:

- Improved speed and functionality – reports generated in seconds!
- Integrative Mapping
- Optimized Intelligent Search capability
- Market Analysis Reports with exceptional detail
- Detailed property profiles
- Detailed amenity and expense data
- Upgraded charts and graphs for current and historical data
- Much more!

The upgrades to our website have been a long time in the making and we appreciate all of the input, comments and suggestions that were submitted by our users. We know you will be pleased with the final result and deem it worth the wait!

Although our website may be changing, our customer service will remain the same – dedicated to our clients, old and new. We look forward to continuing to serve you and thank you for your patience and patronage.
